

Teaching in the Outdoor Classroom

Exciting workshop opportunity for formal and non-formal educators...

OPTION #1

Nov. 5-6, 2005:

Teaching in the Outdoor Classroom.

Participants receive training and POW, Project WILD and PLT curriculum guides.

Fee: $150, includes lodging, 4 meals, snacks & materials.

OPTION #2

Nov. 5-7, 2005:

Teaching in the Outdoor Classroom + WOW! The Wonders of Wetlands Facilitator Training

Fee: $195, includes lodging, 7 meals, snacks & materials

OPTION #3

Nov. 7, 2005:

WOW! The Wonders of Wetlands Facilitator Training

Fee: $60, includes lunch, snacks & materials

For more information or to register, contact
Pam Landry:
508-792-7270
x110 or pam.landry@state.ma.us

Join us for a weekend of K-12 hands-on, multidisciplinary activities from Project WILD, Project Learning Tree and POW! The Planning of Wetlands at Grotonwood in Groton, Massachusetts.

And...

- Teach your students responsible actions towards wildlife and natural resources.
- Use the forest as a “window” on the world to increase students’ understanding of our environment.
- Learn to design, construct and plant a schoolyard wetland habitat and involve students in the process.
- Empower students to make a difference in their communities
- Spend Saturday evening with John Porcino, a professional storyteller, to learn how to weave a tale about your schoolyard
- Then, stay an extra day on November 7th to learn how to bring WOW! The Wonders of Wetlands to your community as a WOW! Facilitator.

Sponsored by:

Don't miss this unique workshop opportunity. Your students will thank you for it!

Spaces are limited. Please register by October 15th to reserve your spot.